

Talwood Primary School receives donation

A CHEQUE was recently presented to Talwood Primary School to help with asbestos cleanup at the facility.

The $2000 donation from Monsanto Australia, which manufactures and distributes agricultural chemicals, was presented in December.

Monsanto technical sales agronomist for Gwydir and Mungindi, Tom Breen, said communities needed sustainable schools.

“We are very pleased to be part of the community and to support this cleanup,” Mr Breen said.

““The long-term health of these children is part of a wider community focused on maintaining strong links and activities to lessen the financial burden brought on by the drought, and falling student numbers,” he said.

“Communities need schools and these initiatives are more important than ever if they are to remain sustainable.”
